HELMS AND FULBRIGHT INTERVIEWED

SAM DONALDSON: "The new Director of the Central Intelligence Agency appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today at his own request, and apologized for endorsing a newspaper slap at the Committee Chairman, Senator J. William Fulbright.

"The St. Louis Globe Democrat had called Fulbright 'crafty' and said he had been properly rebuked by the Senate in his fight to gain seats in the CIA watchdog committee for Foreign Relations Committee members.

"Two days ago, the same newspaper printed a letter from CIA Chief Richard Helms, in which he declared he wanted to let the editors know of his pleasure in reading the editorial.

"Well, Helms' appearance on Capitol Hill followed yesterday's explosion on the floor of the Senate by any number of members indignantly protesting a CIA endorsement of the attack on Fulbright. Even Senators who opposed the Arkansas Democrat, rose to his defense. And Helms, before the Committee, then in a brief statement to reporters, apologized."

HELMS: "I was just simply saying that it was a mistake to sign this letter. I realize it was a mistake, which I regret. And I've apologized."

REPORTER: "Did you draft this letter, sir?"

DONALDSON: "Senator Wayne Morse, a Committee member, demanded that Helms resign in a statement before the committee meeting, but the objective of the attack, Chairman Fulbright, was willing to forgive."

FULBRIGHT: "(fading in)...by an assistant and was submitted to him along with a number of other personal letters, as distinguished from, you know, business letters -- you see, he's been recently appointed, and he simply signed it, as he said,
